

The Greek World

Which world?

THE CONQUESTS OF ALEXANDER 323 BC

This world?

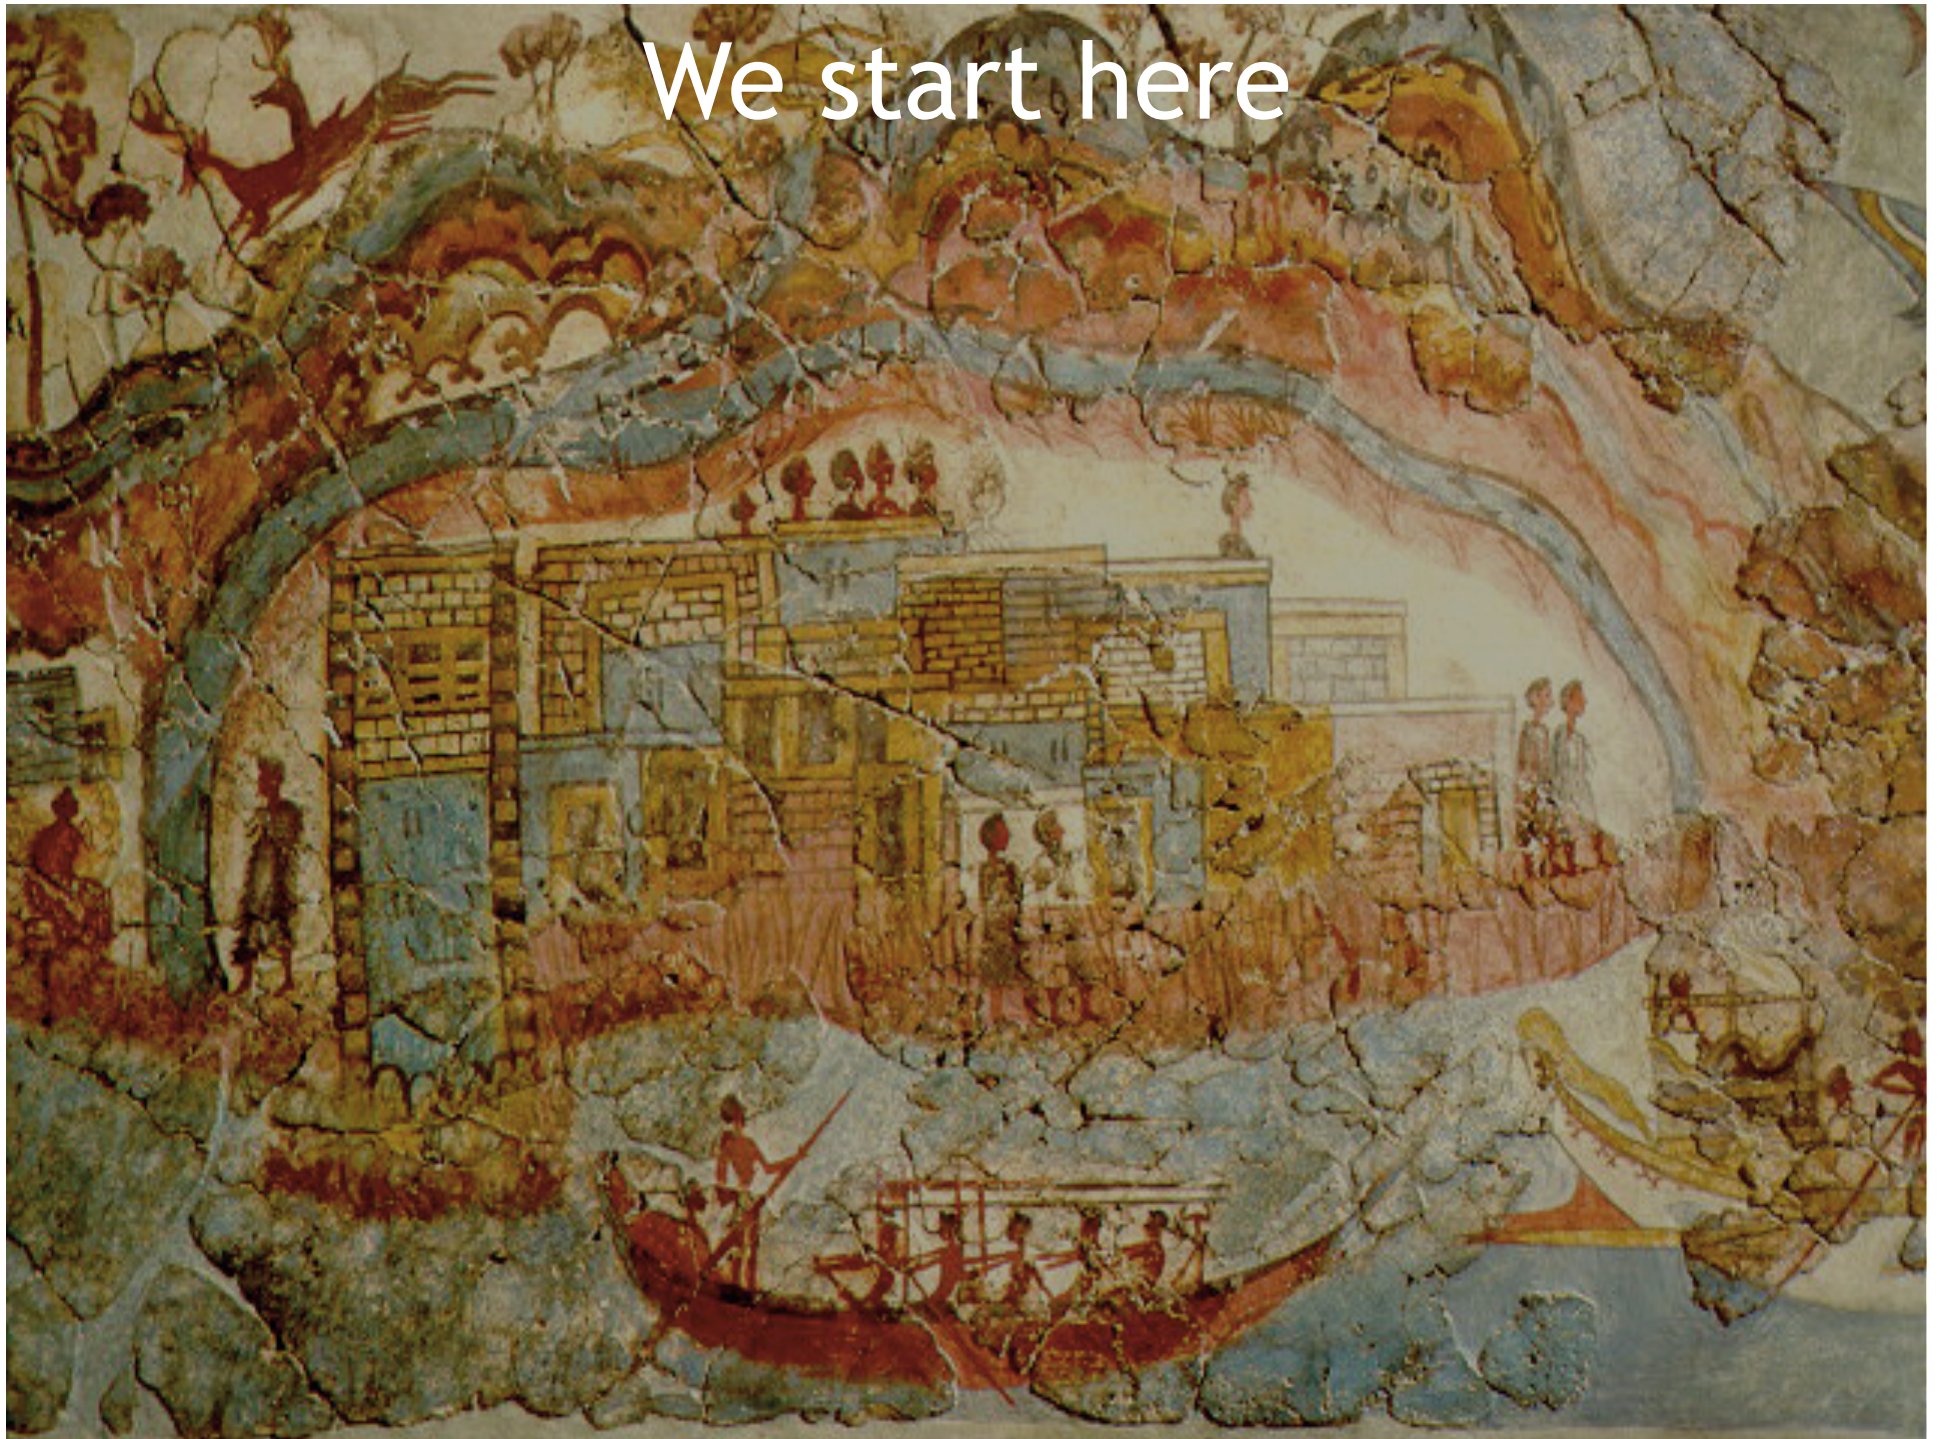

Or this one?

Or even that one

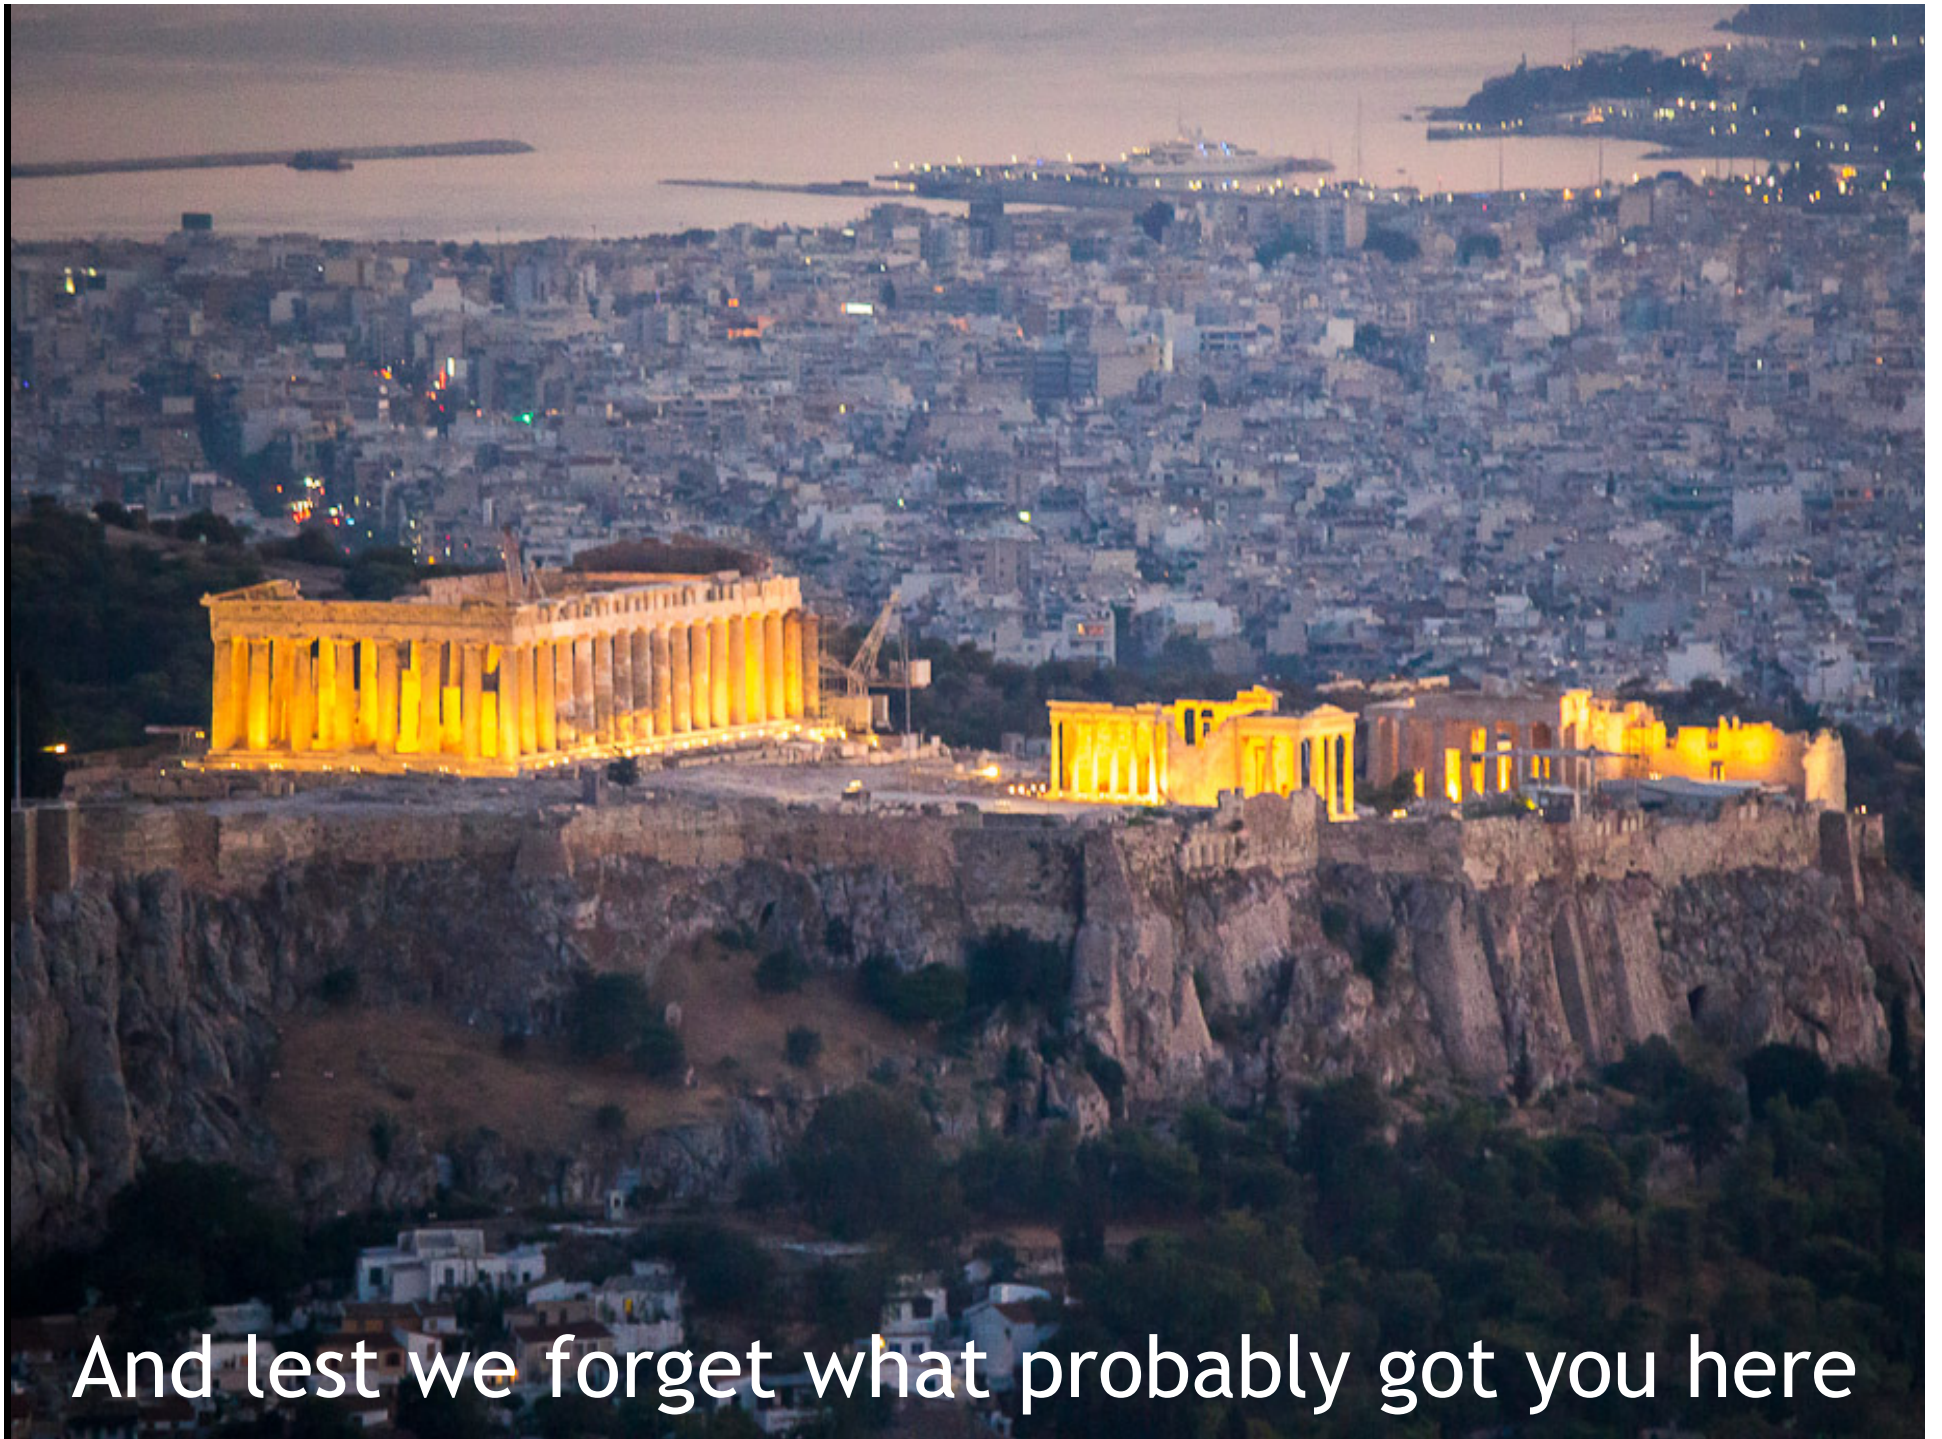

We start here

Or even before that

And lest we forget what probably got you here

Or was it this?

And today...this

That

And then there is this:
Greece and its great depression

Which leads to this

And this

And then to top it all

And him

So why do we care?

What can we learn from the Greeks and their World?

A microscopic image of a plant stem cross-section, showing a vascular bundle. The bundle consists of xylem on the left and phloem on the right. The xylem is composed of large, thick-walled vessels and tracheids, while the phloem is made of smaller, thin-walled cells. The text "1. Continuity" is overlaid in the center of the image.
